Revelation chronicling Church History - posted by JaySaved, on: 2006/3/31 11:57

Someone has posted sermons that talk about Revelation from a Historist point of view.

I was interested in listening to these but I can't find the post.

If anyone knows what I am referring to please help me find it.

Thanks

I believe you are referring to Edgar Parkyns' series of messages titled Church History. The last several messages from this series cover the book of Revelation from the historist point of view. The sound quality of these messages is poor but the content is quite good. The historist position presented here answers alot of questions for me personally but it also creates many more that I would like to explore in more detail some day.
