Praise God for the world of God has surely gone out into the whole world. This is not a map of all the people that access sermonindex but rather the top accessed spots in the world in the last week. For example just click on the map above and the larger map that loads you will see at the lower right "singapore" has a large dot because they have about 175 people that visit sermonindex daily from that city compared in the United States there are about 50 per city that appears on that map. In Netherlands also there are quite a few and also Sweden.

I found it fascinating and I thought it would be great to share with everyone here at SI.

I want to try and work on a map that will show all the countries that have been accessed sermonindex, I am wondering how many countries in the world "have not" been to sermonindex??

wow.....thats gotta really concern us, look at all of those dots in the the sickest country in the world. America, America repent or die.

Sweden and Netherlands as well.....pffft those sicko nations as well, this map is amazing.

So lets pray that all who have access to such great sermons like those of Leonard Ravenhill will spark revival in these God forsaken places.

EDIT: place - places

God bless u all!

maybe they could be marked in red perhaps

Amen brother seeing places like "Saudi Arabia" as hotspots meaning alot of people from that one place go there. It would cool to be able to get a map of the world with every person visiting as a individual dot! there would be alot more! right now there is 500 showing, usually there about 15,000 visitors per day.

Yes, I am going to look into getting a seperate map for that setup.

I was going to say that my area (extreme south Texas) hasn't shown up on the map yet -- even though I visit several times daily! I also have friends in the area that visit daily as well.
