

SermonIndex Support :: New guy with a question.*New guy with a question. - posted by SimpleLiving (), on: 2008/1/11 16:39

I looked at the other forums and didn't see a place where I could ask a question I have. I realize I could do that in the General Forum, but some might consider it an "inappropriate" question. I want to make sure before I ask it.

In general, I'm wondering if a specific Bible teacher's teachings are biblical or if I should avoid them. I don't ask this to insult, gossip, cause division or anything else negative. I'm asking with a sincere heart.

If it would be better to ask a moderator in a PM, let me know. I just don't want to do that and take liberties without asking. Being new here, and wanting to be positive and uplifting, I thought I'd ask first.

Re: New guy with a question. - posted by hmmhmm (), on: 2008/1/11 16:45

if you feel a need to ask, may be a "give away" everything is not right, but i guess this is a fair question to ask, is there a ny specific you feel unsure of in this mans teaching that may cause you to be worried?

the times today which we live in call for great discernment, and these things can be talked about in a right way, and a wrong depending on us.

anyway welcome to the forum! nice to have you on board, hope to see more of you in the future

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2008/1/11 17:18

Quote:
-----In general, I'm wondering if a specific Bible teacher's teachings are biblical or if I should avoid them. I don't ask this to insult, gossip, cause division or anything else negative. I'm asking with a sincere heart.
-----

SermonIndex has a varied amount of speakers on the website with different theological positions. There is a pursuit of truth and apostolic reality on sermonindex.net Do pray to allow God to lead you into all truth, there are many gems to be learned from men of opposite or varied theological positions.

Tozer, Ravenhill, Sparks, are some good starting points.

Re: - posted by SimpleLiving (), on: 2008/1/11 17:31

Thank you both. I appreciate your biblical approach to my question.

The reason I feel a need to ask doesn't so much have anything to do with the teacher as it does not trusting my own judgment in Bible teachers right now. In the Welcome Forum I gave a bit of testimony as to why. I won't waste the space here to repeat it. So, mostly, the question is due to my coming to learn to trust again. Who knows, all this caution could certainly lead to better discernment on my part.

Thanks again!

Re: - posted by sojourner7 (), on: 2008/1/11 19:27

Always measure what is preached and taught with the truth of the Scriptures and the witness of the Spirit. Discernment comes from seeking God's truth and wisdom from His word and listening for the assurance and conviction of the Spirit saying Yea, and AMEN!!