

General Topics :: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy*Greetings from Mrs. Krispy, on: 2008/12/19 11:34

Greetings all! I've only written on this forum once before, but I read it quite often and feel as though I know many of you.

I just would like to wish all of you a very Merry Christmas, and may the Lord continue to bless each and every one of you with spiritual blessings beyond your imaginations.

Blessings in His precious name!

Your sister,
Mrs. Krispy (aka Christy)

Re: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy - posted by BrokenOne (), on: 2008/12/19 11:38

Christmas blessings to you as well, Mrs. Krispy.

Danielle

Re: - posted by Miccah (), on: 2008/12/19 11:57

Thank you sister Krispette :-)

Re: - posted by MrBillPro (), on: 2008/12/19 12:15

Quote:

Miccah wrote:
Thank you sister Krispette :-)

I Love it! now were having fun, it is ok to have fun right? :-P

God Bless you all Brothers and Sisters.
Merry Christmas
Mr. Bill

Edit:

By the way Mrs. Krispette you have an awesome Husband and even if you don't understand him, well who does? just kidding the forum would not be the same without my Brother in Christ Mr.Krispy.

Re: , on: 2008/12/19 14:12

Thank you, Billpro. I think he's pretty awesome too. :-)

I read what he wrote about his favorite Christmas memory. It's mine too. I remember at that time he was in the infancy stage of his walk with Christ, and at times it was cute. Rough around the edges, and he did a lot of things out of zeal and didn't know any better. At that time he was in the process of getting rid of his secular music, and what was one thing he got me for Christmas that year? A Cinderella CD. Cinderella was a one of those hair metal bands from the early 1990's. I asked him why he would get me such a CD knowing I had given all of that up when I got saved, and he said it was because the song "Coming Home" was the theme of his life at that moment. Coming home to God, coming home to me.

I still have that CD. I only listen to that song, but it reminds me that God does answer prayer! God speaks to us in strange ways.

That's my addition to my husband's Christmas memory story. The change Jesus made in both of our lives is simply amazing.

ing.

Mrs. Krispy (aka Christy)

Re: - posted by BrokenOne (), on: 2008/12/19 14:23

Quote:
-----At that time he was in the process of getting rid of his secular music, and what was one thing he got me for Christmas that year? A Cinderella CD. Cinderella was a one of those hair metal bands from the early 1990's. I asked him why he would get me such a CD knowing I had given all of that up when I got saved, and he said it was because the song "Coming Home" was the theme of his life at that moment. Coming home to God, coming home to me.

Awesome story. I remember that band.....

I think, in honor of this story, you should now be named Krisperella.

:-)

Re: , on: 2008/12/19 14:26

Krisperella? The only difference is that my prince has already showed up! ;-) No glass slipper required!

Mrs. Krispy

Re: , on: 2008/12/19 14:48

Nice... I go to lunch with a buddy of mine, and I come back and my wife has made me look like a cream puff on here! :-x lol...

Krispy

Re: - posted by ginnyrose (), on: 2008/12/19 15:25

Krispy wrote:

Quote:
-----Nice... I go to lunch with a buddy of mine, and I come back and my wife has made me look like a cream puff on here!

Now, aren't you proud and all woolly inside? :-)

Krispyella (sp?), you better watch that man's shirt buttons, they may be popping off his shirt!

This is such a sweet post!

Have a blessed Christmas!

ginnyrose

Re: , on: 2008/12/19 15:35

Not to worry, ginnyrose, my sewing machine does buttons!

Mrs. Krispy

Re: - posted by ginnyrose (), on: 2008/12/19 15:45

Quote:

-----Not to worry, ginnyrose, my sewing machine does buttons!

Good. Now we could start talking about sewing machines and drive the mods to distraction! But will spare them this aggravation and be good...:-)

Nice seeing you post, Christy!

Blessings,
ginnyrose

Re: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy, on: 2008/12/19 15:48

Quote:

-----Greetings from Mrs. Krispy

LOL!!!!!!

Re: - posted by crsschk (), on: 2008/12/19 15:50

This is wonderful ...

Thank you Mrs. Krispy, thank you so very much.

Re: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy - posted by ifmypeople, on: 2008/12/19 17:25

AMEN! And Please send my christmas greetings to Mr Krispy Klaus himself....Rob

Re: - posted by MJones (), on: 2008/12/19 18:07

The site wouldn't be what it is without all the heavy stuff, but yet somehow these occasional lighter threads do more to connect us.

It seems an appropriate place to include a poem written by Joyce Johnson. I was told she was 80 years old.

My Source

In every line of verse I write,
I put a share of me.
I can't describe what I don't know,
Cannot perceive what I can't see.

A poet writes of which he's read
A little bit of what he's heard
A crumb of it is what he's seen
And of himself in every word.

I have a long lifetime to delve
For thoughts to put into my rhyme.
If you scan each of my refrains,
You'll know the whole of me, in time.

Pleasure to meet you Krisperella.

Re: , on: 2008/12/19 18:48

Merry Christmas to you also, Mrs. Krispy, and to the rest of the Krispy Kritter family. :-)

Re: - posted by repentcanada, on: 2008/12/19 21:44

so good! God bless the whole krispy family

Re: - posted by Compton (), on: 2008/12/20 1:01

Quote:

-----God bless the whole krispy family

Amen! You are a blessing to us. Merry Christmas!

Re: , on: 2008/12/20 6:57

All you all are so sweet! I might have to consider getting my own screen name. But to be honest, deep theological discussions are not really my thing. :-D I'll leave that to hubby. I like to keep things simple and uncomplicated. Jesus loves me, this I know. And it's all we really need to know! We need to hide His Word in our heart, and grow in knowledge and grace. But in the end all that matters is that He loves us so much.

It's been nice to hear the sentiments from all of you!

Merry Christmas once again.

Mrs. Krispy

Re: - posted by crsschk (), on: 2008/12/20 7:16

Quote:

-----I like to keep things simple and uncomplicated. Jesus loves me, this I know. And it's all we really need to know! We need to hide His Word in our heart, and grow in knowledge and grace.

And I think that is why some of us are finding this so refreshing. Our tendencies to overdoing things around here ...

Hope you will pop in on us whenever you will Mrs. Krispy - I am want to say that the Lord sent you at just this time, just when we needed to hear a clear, calm voice in the midst of so much upheaval of late.

That oft quoted line about behind every good man is ... - couldn't be more true.

Merry Christmas to you all.

General Topics :: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy

Re: - posted by MJones (), on: 2008/12/20 8:14

Quote:

crsschk wrote:

And I think that is why some of us are finding this so refreshing. Our tendencies to overdoing things around here ...

We can get so deep, that we bury ourselves. It is refreshing to come up for air now and then.

Re: - posted by ginnyrose (), on: 2008/12/20 19:27

I'll bet Krispy's buttons are popping off fast, right and left! LOL Or maybe he is flying?? or at least his feet are off the earth!!

Christy, why don't you get a screen name and come on here and talk with us on a regular basis? I'm sure Krispy will keep you from getting out of line! :-P

Nice to have a little fun ... and have a good week...

ginnyrose

Re: - posted by PaulWest (), on: 2008/12/20 19:41

Quote:

-----I'm sure Krispy will keep you from getting out of line!

Or maybe it's the other way around ;-)

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Brother Paul

Re: , on: 2008/12/20 20:15

Quote:

PaulWest wrote:

Quote:

-----I'm sure Krispy will keep you from getting out of line!

Or maybe it's the other way around ;-)

;-)

General Topics :: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy

Re: , on: 2008/12/21 8:12

I dont know about buttons flying... but my wife has always been a breath of fresh air to me. She puts up with a lot, therefore she is also long suffering. Not easy living with me, and add to that... being a coach's wife ain't easy (putting up with parents), also being a mentor to the women in our fellowship, and being the only female in a house of 5 guys (homeschool mom)! If it wasn't for her it would be a house of 5 cavemen, I reckon! LOL... she keeps us relatively civilized and somewhat respectable.

God has blessed her with the right amount of gifts and talents.

I'm glad she gave everyone a little taste of what I get day in and day out. And believe me, I do my best to make sure I do not take it for granted.

When we met I was a Marine and she was a waitress in a club down in Myrtle Beach SC. Look how far God has taken us in this journey.

Love ya, babe.

Krispy

Re: - posted by BVO (), on: 2008/12/21 8:32

My wife and I were talking this morning about the good life God has given us, where He's brought us from, and His perfect timing in our lives. He is GOOD. I accidentally hit my old private messages this morning and the first one was from Krispy a while back as we were messaging about a friend of mine. At that time I shared some of your responses with my wife who loves Jesus, but can't stand stuffy religion and she appreciated your honest down to earth responses (rare). God has indeed given you a big new heart, a heart of flesh! You were a blessing to me at that time and I appreciate this thread. We truly are a community, a family, a body. Thank you!! God bless and Merry Christmas Love Barry

Re: - posted by ginnyrose (), on: 2008/12/21 9:18

Quote:
----- she keeps us relatively civilized and somewhat respectable.

Krispy, Ann Landers said something similar years ago: "God gave males women to civilize them!" Didn't know you read Ann Landers?? :-?

Quote:
-----She puts up with a lot, therefore she is also long suffering. Not easy living with me, and add to that... being a coach's wife ain't easy

It has been my understanding that a coach is like a general "When I bark, you better jump!" Years ago a Lt. Col. volunteered at CPC when I was there. When I found out what his rank was I said "so, you bark and they jump!" He said "yes, pretty much so!" I then told him "Just don't do it at home!" He kind of hung his head...poor guy...

Have a blessed day!
ginnyrose

Re: Greetings from Mrs. Krispy - posted by tjservant (), on: 2008/12/21 10:48

Mrs. Krispy

When I first read this thread the other day I began to think about what the SI forum would be like with two Krispy Krittrs. :
-o After having thought about it for awhile, I stand convinced that my initial reaction is the correct one...it would be better
. :-)

Mr. Krispy has been an asset to this community and I'm sure you will be too. Merry Christmas, hope to see more of you on the forum.

PS

I was so glad to hear about your son. It did my heart good to hear how he knew to approach his earthly parents when he had questions about his Heavenly Father. I thank God for his salvation.

Grace and peace