I was wondering if anybody could recommend any writings of Charles Spurgeon to me? I've only read the occasional sermon/devotional, and would like to spend time getting a better exposure to what he had to say.

I would recommend his commentary on the psalms, also the book Lectures to my students is worthy of reading.

And if you want Spurgeon for some years to come you might want to consider his collected (http://www.christianbook.com/spurgeons-sermons-5-volumes/charles-spurgeon/9780801011139/pd/11132?item_code=WW&netp_id102798&event=ESRCN&viewdetails) sermons. I think it's about 250 sermons in five volumes for 50 dollars. It's quite much good reading for the dollar.

You get his free paperback book called All of Grace at Mount Zion Chapel Library in Pensacola, Florida, I would check out their site by googling it. John

I third "Lectures to my Students." It is a very practical and powerful book. Another one I love that I have is called "The Holy Spirit." It is about 10 or so sermons he preached on the Holy Spirit. The first one of which is amazing. (The only one I have read so far.)
