Saints,

Maybe this is abit biased :) But I wanted to recommend a great blog that is focused on ministering to sisters in the Lord. My wife runs it and it is wonderful to see her Spirit-inspired posts from time to time. Go ahead and take a look and be en courage as she is dedicated to twitter updates and write every few days. You will be blessed.

Thank you, Greg. I just checked it out and have already been blessed.

By the way, a 'small' testimony...another way in which this ministry has blessed me. I am the student that was desperatel y looking for a church in the Boston area. I ended up finding a really good one through Sermon Index, though indirectly.

I was randomly surfing the internet in a public area on my campus when another student passed behind me and noticed this website. He stopped, said hello, handed me a gospel track, and invited me for Bible study at a house church. I've be en going there since and it has been a GREAT blessing so far. The pastor truly has a passion for God; hearing from him , as well as fellow-shiping with others at this church, is always very edifying.

I was waiting for an opportunity to tell someone on here this testimony. It's a blessing just to remember how God set it u p.

Praise God!
