Does Sermon Index have a Chat line, and if not, what say ye?

What's a chat line?

Re:, on: 2005/3/9 17:52

I brought this up before and all I got was a yawn. I sure would like to see a chat room here.

For more details on the yawn

The other thing to keep in mind is that SI is a worldwide family, and a chat room would inevitably exclude some folks...

The sun that bids us rest is waking
Our brethren Â'neath the western sky,
And hour by hour fresh lips are making
Thy wondrous doings heard on high.

You turned my tickle over :lol:

Ah, okay! I know what you guys are talking about now. Yes, I got to join one of those old SI chat sessions. Someone ta ught; I don't remember who. Different and interesting for sure.

I guess there's nothing wrong with sharing new ideas, or... trying to resurrect old ones. Maybe pray about it. I don't know that Greg has the time or the resources being up at the Bible college. In the meantime, God's blessed us with what's here.

Yes having Live Seminars where a good speaker will share a message is something I want to have as part of the site. I am hoping to get a good solution for that technology but most cost quite abit of money. I do see later down the road this is something that can be done live audio/video text chat with the preacher. Please pray about this.. it is something where just the technological tool is the roadblock to having it on the site. If God wants it to work out it will. I know when I first started it on SI that it was somewhat of a pioneering of something new and I still have that desire to jump into that new thing and opportunities to share the gospel.

But to just have a plain text chat room where people can just discuss generic things live I don't think would be as fruitful as this forum medium that we are utilizing here on SI.

Boy ZekeO has got me going with this subject line thing...

Hmmm, recall those days brother. It was interesting, but found it a bit hard after listening to the message and then discussing it. Having so many voices going at the same time and trying to keep up with the back and forth, especially if your typing is on the slow side, not much time for reflection.

But am not really familiar with it other than that and would hedge towards Ron's thoughts. Also would wonder about the penchant carrying over towards even more slang here, being that you end up having to abbreviate so much...

Of course what you were doing before was a bit different than just having a plain chat room.

Agree.

Suggestion: we have an agreed message we all listen too in video or audio format, and after we discuss it?

What do you guys think?

PS. I like Wilkerson or Ravenhill or someone along those lines then we can as a group discuss Hmmm, you might be on to something there...

It would be helpful in drawing out some comments that could also be used later for the description headings for just one thought.

Making dinner right now but this sounds like a pretty good idea...

A Chat would be cool.

Something like this is probably not going to happen for a while again. However there's always msn, aim,...etc :-). I've been to the "Christian" chat rooms on the net and they make me a little leary. I would be a little hesitant unless they were moderated chat rooms. Besides, we already have the forum.
