I came across this article and I had to read it several times to understand what he is saying. He says it has been taken out of context in this day. Today it is preached to see we can do all things in Jesus as in going to school and getting a degree, moving to a higher level of job or somewhere in life when in actuality it is meaning to be content in all situations and the harder the situation the more strength God gives us to endure.

Is this the real intent of the verse?
