

General Topics :: The wall shall shortly fall- and great will be the fall of it!The wall shall shortly fall- and great will be the fall of it!, on: 2014/8/30 17:13

There is a wall spoken of in Ezekiel 13:10-16. The wall is constructed upon false-hood and lies. Lying prophets who tell the people what they want to hear. They cry peace and prosperity where there is no peace and their prosperity is the gold and silver of this world. Their gold and silver and jewels are truly wood, hay and stubble and it shall surely come to nothing when the Lord comes against this wall.

There are many who plaster this wall and they do so with untempered mortar. Now, I laid bricks for over 25 years. In the beginning, when I was an apprentice, we went to a trade school. In that trade school, which was indoors, we built many beautiful structures. We built egg-shaped sewers and Gothic arches and so on and we perfected all the finer points of constructing beautiful structures. If you were to walk into the large room where we were hard at work, you would see some of the finest examples of brickwork to be found. The untrained eye would not notice and really could not notice that the mortar between the bricks was only sand and lime, it was untempered, it had no cement. When the project was finished it was simply and easily taken down and the material would be scraped off and used again. If it were outside, it would last to a certain degree but if a storm or rain were to hit it, the structures would simply collapse on themselves as the mortar that held everything together never set and had no actual strength to withstand the weather or shaking.

This is the kind of wall that Ezekiel is talking about in Chapter 13. Christendom itself is just like this wall. It has been constructed by false prophets and the mortar used to hold it all together is religiosity. It gives a beautiful appearance and it encompasses a stronghold, but the time is coming soon when the Lord Himself will come against this structure. The Lord Himself will cause a storm designed specifically to bring the structure down. This is just like Matthew 7:26 where the Lord talks about two houses. One is built upon a foundation of Truth, that is Jesus, and the other has no foundation at all, it is merely built on sand. Now, in the normal course of events no one would ever know what house had a foundation or which did not, until a storm comes and beats against the house and it falls and great is the fall of that house, yet the house that stands upon Jesus alone, weathers the storm.

This storm is coming brothers and sisters. In fact the fore-winds have already begun to blow. There will be a flooding rain, great hailstones shall fall and a stormy wind shall tear it down. Tear what down and expose what? The great wall of religion and denominationalism shall soon be exposed as the birth pangs begin to intensify. God always has a remnant of people who dwell outside the walls, outside the systems of men who are witnesses and who testify of the truth. Indeed, as Stephen says, God does not dwell in temples built by human hands. God's kingdom dwells within the hearts of His children. His structures consist of living stones. These living stones together, is the temple of God.

This great storm of darkness that is descending upon the world is designed to leave only the true children of God standing, and by standing I mean never faltering, standing fast to the end, prevailing, enduring and overcoming. That which is without the foundation of Jesus, which is constructed by untempered mortar will not stand and by not standing I mean shall falter, shall not stand fast unto the end, shall not prevail, shall not endure and shall not overcome rather shall be overcome by the great fall of the world and will be destroyed in the midst of this great fall when God moves. Finally that untempered wall shall be no more when the climax of the storm comes, when Jesus Himself shall descend in all His glory with the saints with a shout of glory and triumph. Those saints still alive after the final martyrs have been slaughtered shall arise and join Christ and His army in the air, that glorious army of saints who come with Christ and then every knee shall bow, of those in heaven and on earth and under the earth and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God.....bro Frank

Re: The wall shall shortly fall- and great will be the fall of it!, on: 2014/8/30 22:46

Six years ago, while in a back room praying with saints, I saw in the Spirit that we had approached a great walled city, a great stronghold. We had approached the city on our knees, we were an army of saints marching on our knees and we had come to a mighty walled fortress. To all intents and purposes it was impenetrable. The gathered saints began to pray, and these very prayers began to crash into the wall. These prayers were like ancient stones being lobbed on catapults and crashing into the wall. All of a sudden I saw a breach and the breach became bigger and the wall began to come down. The Lord showed me clearly that this stronghold, this walled stronghold, was made up of and had been built down through the centuries by men who were building their own kingdoms and these kingdoms, these walls had caused divisions and separations between the Body of Christ. There were many within the walls who were able to escape through the breach. God caused the breach through the prayers of the saints and was calling His saints out from behind those walls built

General Topics :: The wall shall shortly fall- and great will be the fall of it!

t by men and plastered by men using untempered mortar. What God builds stands. What men build falls, even if it takes centuries to fall. What God has called together, what Jesus called for in John 17 will come to pass.....bro Frank