"I am afraid that I see only a few who speak the Truth, but of those few most speak the Truth with hate, anger, bitterness, arrogance and vindictiveness. It does not matter how much Truth you speak; if you do so with the wrong attitude you are wasting your time. The Lord will not honor you and He will not bless your words." Anton Bosch

Neither be partaker of other men's sins - It is a sin for any improper person to thrust himself into the sacred office; and he partakes of that sin who introduces, helps him forward, or sanctions him in it. O, what an account will rash, undiscerning, and prejudiced bishops, presbyters, and others, have to render to God for their ordinations! Their laying rash or careless hands "on skulls that cannot teach, and will not learn;" while probably they refuse inducting others well qualified for the Christian ministry. - Adam Clarke

"We must be filled with the Holy Spirit. This is no optional command of the Bible, it is absolutely necessary. Those earthly disciples could never have stood up under the persecution of the Jews and Romans had they not waited for Pentecost. Each of us needs our own personal Pentecost, the baptism of the Holy Spirit. We will never be able to stand in the tribulation without it."

- Corrie Ten Boom

"The greatest witnessing tool that we have been given by Jesus is the unity of the Church."

- Mark DeYmaz

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2015/4/5 19:21

"We do not teach and practice community of goods but we teach and testify the Word of the Lord, that all true believers in Christ are of one body (I Cor. 12:13), partakers of one bread (I Cor. 10:17), have one God and one Lord (Eph. 4). Seeing then that they are one, . . . it is Christian and reasonable that they also have divine love among them and that one member cares for another, for both the Scriptures and nature teach this. They show mercy and love, as much as is in them. They do not suffer a beggar among them. They have pity on the wants of the saints. They receive the wretched. They take strangers into their houses. They comfort the sad. They lend to the needy. They clothe the naked. They share their bread with the hungry. They do not turn their face from the poor nor do they regard their decrepit limbs and flesh (Isa. 58). This is the kind of brotherhood we teach." - Menno Simons

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2015/4/10 19:02

"How different the world would look, how different the state of our nation would be, if there were more sanctified priestly souls! These are souls who have the power to bless, for they intercede with sanctified hearts. They never begin their daily time of intercessory prayer without having first brought to the cross all that is unholy in their lives, so that their old self can be crucified there with Jesus, the sacrificial Lamb." - Basilea Schlink

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2015/4/10 19:03

"You are troubled and anxious. Yet you cannot solve your problems and difficulties by yourself. Your own restless thoughts and aspirations are making you weak and incompetent. They clog the channel of your heart through which God wants His help to flow. Leave everything to God. Let all your restless thoughts, worrying and frenetic planning come to rest. Rest in God and in His sovereign rule in the knowledge that He will act. Then you will discover that "in quietness and in trust shall be your strength". So choose this course and you will experience help." - Basilea Schlink

â€œOur blessed Lord took all opportunities of reminding his disciples that their professing themselves to be His followers, would call them to a constant state of voluntary suffering and self-denial.â€ - George Whitefield

Re: - posted by ArthurRosh (), on: 2015/4/19 5:51

But let not this dismay us; for in all this, the seed of the woman is more than conqueror, and bruises the serpent's head. Thus the Israelites, the more they were oppressed, the more they increased. Thus it was with the Apostles; thus it was with their immediate followers. So that Tertullian compares the church in his time to a mowed field; the more frequently it is cut, the more it grows. The blood of the martyrs was always the seed of the church. And I have often sat down with wonder and delight, and admired how God has made the very schemes which his enemies contrived, in order to hinder, become the most effectual means to propagate his gospel. The devil has had so little success in persecution, that if I did not know that he and his children, according to this verse, could not but persecute, I should think he would count it his strength to sit still.
- George Whitefield

â€œIf it were not for persecution, I should not understand the scripture.â€ â€œIf Satan should be yet suffered to bruise my heel further, and his servants should thrust me into prison, I doubt not, but even that would only tend to the more effectual bruising of his head.â€ I remember a saying the then Lord Chancellor to the pious Bradford: â€œThou hast done more hurt, said he, by thy exhortations in private in prison, than thou didst in preaching before thou was put in."

- G.W.

Re: - posted by ArthurRosh (), on: 2015/4/19 6:10

Are there any enemies of God here? The promise of the text encourages me to bid you defiance: the seed of the woman, the ever-blessed Jesus, shall bruise the serpent's head. What signifies all your malice? You are only raging waves of the sea, foaming out your own shame. For you, without repentance, is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever. The Lord Jesus sits in heaven, ruling over all, and causing all things to work for his children's good: he laughs you to scorn: he hath you in the utmost derision, and therefore so will I. Who are you that persecute the children of the ever blessed God? Though a poor stripling, the Lord Jesus, the seed of the woman, will enable me to bruise your heads.

â€œI would rather play with forked lightning, or take in my hand living wires with their fiery current, than speak a reckless word against any servant of Christ, or idly repeat the slanderous darts which thousands of Christian are hurling on others.â€ - A.B. Simpson

"Christianity is not a matter of persuading people of particular ideas, but of inviting them to share in the greatness of Christ. So pray that I may never fall into the trap of impressing people with clever speech, but instead I may learn to speak with humility, desiring only to impress people with Christ Himself." â€ Ignatius of Antioch, 35-108 A.D.

"Great Potter, fashion us! Wise Artificer, frame us! Pierced Hands, guide us where we should go. We will not be perverse children, but submit to Thy wise understanding and trust where we cannot see, committing the keeping of our souls to Thee in well-doing, as unto a faithful Creator. Amen." - Prayer by F.B Meyer

â€œNothing profits us so much as constantly to remember the mercies of God, whether public or private. And if our hearts are warmed when we receive the favors of our friends, or hear some kind word or deed of theirs, much more shall we be zealous in His service when we see into what dangers we had fallen, and that God has delivered us from them all.â€ - John Chrysostom

â€œThere is nothing like the light of eternity to show what is real and what is not.â€ - Catherine Booth

Re: - posted by turn, on: 2015/5/6 8:33

...We are all apt to divorce comfort from duty and to content ourselves with a 'barren and unfruitful knowledge' of Jesus Christ (2 Peter 1:8) as if all that he required of the world were only a few naked and cold and inactive apprehensions of his merit and all things were so done for us that nothing remained to be done by us. This is the wretched conceit of many in the present age, and therefore, either they abuse the sweetness of grace to looseness or the power of it to laziness. Christ's merit and the Spirit's efficacy are the commonplaces from whence they draw all the defenses and excuses of their own wantonness and idleness.

It is true God hath opened an excellent treasure in the church to defray the expenses of humble sinners, and to bear the expenses of the saints to heaven; but there is nothing allowed to wanton prodigals who spend freely and sin lavishly upon the mere account of the riches of grace...

- Thomas Manton (1620-1677) from preface to his work: James, A Practical Commentary.

Most Christians in the West are educated beyond their obedience. More education is not what we need. We need more obedience to what we already know...Knowing something is not nearly as potent as doing something with what you know...When God develops a leader organically, he develops the whole person, not merely his or her knowledge.

- Neil Cole in Organic Leadership

"The Christian life can only be lived one way, and that is God's way. God's way is that I leave all and follow Him." Ravenhill

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2015/5/26 17:01

"There is something worse than holding our silence while the lost of this world run headlong into hell: the crime of preaching to a different gospel than the one passed down to the saints. For this reason, we must shun the gospel of contemporary evangelicalism, for it is a watered-down, culturally carved, truncated gospel that allows men to hold to a form of godliness while denying its power, to profess to know God while denying Him with their deeds, and to call Jesus "Lord, Lord," while not doing the Father's will. Woe to us if we do not preach the gospel, but even greater woe is due us if we preach it incorrectly!" - Paul Washer

"Let us ask God to restore the light in our own souls. Let us become simple. It may be that God will keep you small and hidden. O wonderful, wonderful call! He says, "My love, let me see thy countenance, thou that art in the secret place of the stairs." Let others make a great noise and clamor for attention. The bride of Christ is hiding away in Him with one desire only to please the Bridegroom." - Hans Waldvogel

The Pharisees came to John questioning by Who's authority he preached. I love his reply. He said, I am the voice(of the one crying in the wilderness). John had a voice, most of us are just an echo."

Ravenhill

"Let the mouth also fast from disgraceful speeches and railings. For what does it profit if we abstain from fish and fowl and yet bite and devour our brothers and sisters? The evil speaker eats the flesh of his brother and bites the body of his neighbour." - John Chrysostom

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2015/6/9 11:07

"You may find hundreds of faultfinders among professed Christians; but all their criticism will not lead one solitary soul to Christ. I never preached a sermon yet that I could not pick to pieces, and find fault with. I feel that Jesus Christ ought to have a far better representative than I am. But I have lived long enough to discover that there is nothing perfect in this world. If you are to wait till you find a perfect preacher, or perfect meetings, I am afraid you will have to wait till the millennium arrives. What we want is to be looking up to Christ. Let us be done with faultfinding." - D.L. Moody

All the wretched mess that exists in the organization of Christianity today... is because something specific in itself, either a movement, a mission, a teaching, a testimony, a fellowship, has taken the place of Christ.
T. Austin Sparks

"Let Him show us the vision of the Glory, and bring us to the very end of self, let Him touch our lips with the live coal, and set us on fire to burn for Him, yea, burn with consuming love for Him, and a purpose none can turn us from, and a passion like a pure white flame, “a passion for the Glory of God!”
Oh, may this passion consume us! Burn the self out of us, burn the love into us “for God’s Glory we ask it, Amen.”
- Amy Carmichael

The evangelist Charles Finney speaking at a pastor's conference in 1873:

"Brethren, our preaching will bear its legitimate fruits. If immorality prevails in the land, the fault is ours in a great degree. If there is a decay of conscience, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the public press lacks moral discrimination, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the church is degenerate and worldly, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the world loses its interest in religion, the pulpit is responsible for it. If Satan rules in our halls of legislation, the pulpit is responsible for it. If our politics become so corrupt that the very foundations of our government are ready to fall away, the pulpit is responsible for it. Let us not ignore this fact, my dear brethren; but let us lay it to heart, and be thoroughly awake to our responsibility in respect to the morals of this nation."

Let God isolate us.
In this isolating experience
He develops an independence of faith and life so that the soul needs no longer the constant help, prayer, faith, or attention of his neighbor.

We must dare to be alone.
Jacob must be left alone
if the Angel of God is to whisper in his ear
the mystic name of Shiloh;
Daniel must be left alone if he is to see celestial visions;
John must be banished to Patmos
if he is deeply to take and firmly to keep the print of heaven.

It is not said in the Book, "The Word became printer's ink," but it is said, "The Word became flesh."

Had the Word become printer's ink, we should have followed a code.

Instead our code is a Character. We follow a living mind instead of a fixed letter.

"Wearing a headcovering is only one of many Biblical practices that could be called outward, symbolic acts...there are, unfortunately, some people who emphasize only outward symbols and ignore the more important inward realities that those symbols represent. But the abuse of a Biblical practice by hypocrites does not negate or lessen its value and importance for sincere believers. Insincere believers, hypocrites, and even unbelievers sometimes get baptized or take the Lord's Supper, yet very few Christians suggest that these Biblical practices be abandoned by sincere believers." - Daniel Botkin

And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved. (Matt 24:12-13)

John Calvin, referring to Matthew 24:12-13: "Although, then, the charity of many, overwhelmed by the mass of iniquities, should give way, Christ warns believers that they must surmount this obstacle, lest, overcome by bad examples, they apostatize. And therefore he repeats the statement, that no man can be saved, unless he strive lawfully, (2 Timothy 2:5,) so as to persevere to the end" (Calvin, Commentaries. Vol 3, pg 82).

Re: , on: 2015/7/27 0:10

Strictly speaking, the Scripture is the witness to the Word of God, and like a good witness, it does not speak of itself but points away from itself (John 5:39).

Church history has amply demonstrated that we have not generally made the same distinction. The written record has been absolutized. The prophetic spirit was quenched. The Christian Scripture became a rigid Christian Torah, a rule book for everything Christians must believe and teach. The gospel became a new law. Faith was confounded with orthodoxy, which was really theological legalism. The church ceased to be a charismatic community and became an institution. Instead of the Spirit there were rules. Instead of the priesthood of all believers there was wretched clericalism. Instead of the Spirit and presence of the living Christ there was religious canned goods. Instead of the living gospel there was dead ideology. Instead of freedom there was bondage. Yet, like the Pharisees, we have desperately tried to substitute an incredible devotion to the letter of Holy Scripture for the prophetic spirit. Instead of having the certainty which the Spirit inspires, we have looked for certainty in endless apologetics and theories of textual inerrancy.

It is clear that there must be difficulties for us in a revelation such as the Bible. If someone were to hand me a book that was as simple to me as the multiplication table, and say, 'This is the Word of God. In it He has revealed His whole will and wisdom,' I would shake my head and say, 'I cannot believe it; that is too easy to be a perfect revelation of infinite wisdom.' There must be, in any complete revelation of God's mind and will and character and being, things hard for the beginner to understand; and the wisest and best of us are but beginners. --R.A. Torrey

Life relates to a person. Religion relates to things. That's one great difference. Religion is taken up with things. As, for instance, rules, doctrines, theology, duty, institutions, rituals and other such things. Now I do not say that any of those things are necessarily evil but in those things there is no life. The most important verse in Scripture is “And the word became flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth; we have beheld his glory, glory of the only Son from the Father . . .”

“The Word became flesh” is the Great Divide. In all other religions it is Word became word—a philosophy, a moralism, a system, a technique, but for all time and all men everywhere, “the Word became flesh” the Idea became Fact.

Then I got hold of this difference (between all world religions and Christianity) in all other religions it is the Word become word, but only in Jesus Christ, did the Word become flesh. Then (and only then) Everything fell into its place. I had the Key, and this Key fitted everything in East and West . . . Religions are man's search for God. The gospel is God's search for man.

Therefore, there are many religions, but only one gospel.

"I was first introduced to the ministry of Milton Green by our friend, Evangelist James Robison. He said, 'You need to hear this man; his message is awesome. It has changed my life.' At the time, I was in no mood to hear him or listen to any of his tapes. I had heard rumors that he was teaching 'strange delusions,' that all he talked about was demons and that 'Spirit-filled believers could be possessed by them.' Others told me he misused the Word of God by spiritualizing everything.

'Recently I took the time to listen to his message. After the first message, I knew I was hearing a true word of repentance, holiness, and heart purity. After three messages, I was on my face before God, having been shattered by the hammer of God's Word. No other message of repentance had so touched me. I am convinced God has called Milton Green to be one of those chosen vessels to bring the church back to repentance and purity. God has given him a strong message searing, searching, yet healing and uplifting.'

I have many dear beloved friends who hold to what I believe is just basic replacement theology. If I made that assertion to them, they would recoil and say, "Dalton, this is not replacement theology, this is covenant or fulfillment or inclusion theology."

If your theology of Israel divests them of their National, ethnic, territorial or identity or destiny, you have embraced replacement theology. You may not use the term, you may not use the language, you may not even believe you believe it...

The end result of fulfillment theology is the same result as replacement theology, namely that there are no promises that remain for the Jewish people on a National level.

It's almost as though the Gentile church was a little envious, it lacked the privileges, it took it over and it's wanted to hang on to it. So in other words, there's been rank identity theft.

Anne Askew:

Regarding Transubstantiation

When asked (during her torture) if she had ever said that a priest could not make the body of Christ, Anne reportedly said, "I have read that God made man; but that man can make God, I have never read, nor I suppose ever shall."

"Then they did put me on the rack, because I confessed no ladies or gentlemen, to be of my opinion...the Lord Chancellor or and Master Rich took pains to rack me with their own hands, till I was nearly dead. I fainted...and then they recovered me again. After that I sat two long hours arguing with the Lord Chancellor, upon the bare floor...With many flattering words, he tried to persuade me to leave my opinion... I said that I would rather die than break my faith."

So on this day, poor Anne Askew (25 years old) was found guilty of heresy once and for all and sentenced to die by burning in roughly a month. Her story is a very sad one, as she is remembered and known for being a brave and passionate woman - the only woman to be tortured in the Tower of London for her beliefs. Torturing women was against the King's policy until Anne Askew arrived on the scene.

You are still in the world. You are still in the battlefield. You daily fight for your lives. So you must be careful, that . . . what you have begun to be with such a blessed commencement will be consummated in you. It is a small thing to have first received something. It is a greater thing to be able to keep what you have attained. Faith itself and the saving birth do not make you alive by merely being received. Rather, they must be preserved. It is not the actual attainment, but the perfecting, that keeps a man for God. The Lord taught this in His instruction when He said, "Look! you have been made whole. Sin no more lest a worse thing come upon you." Solomon, Sual, and many others were able to keep the grace given to them so long as they walked in the Lord's ways. However, when the discipline of the Lord was forsaken by them, grace also forsook them.

"If the professed convert distinctly and deliberately declares that he knows the Lord's will but does not mean to attend to it, you are not to pamper his presumption, but it is your duty to assure him that he is not saved. Do not suppose that the Gospel is magnified or God glorified by going to the worldlings and telling them that they may be saved at this moment by simply accepting Christ as their Savior, while they are wedded to their idols, and their hearts are still in love with sin. If I do so I tell them a lie, pervert the Gospel, insult Christ, and turn the grace of God into lasciviousness."

A testimony:

I learned about the goodness and grace of God but they were more theoretical ideas about God than practical ways in which He dealt with mankind. Due to how He was portrayed by many church leaders in my circle, I saw God as an angry old man who was fed up with man's sinful living. Since I'd been taught that He was obsessed with man's sins and failures, I became obsessed with them too. No one could measure up to my standards of holy conduct and I became an obnoxious and judgmental person.

"You do not discover character until pressure comes. You do not discover what you are until you're put into difficult situations. As long as you can control your environment, as long as you can have everything your own way, as long as you can pave the road a head of you and put guard-rails on the side of you, then it's easy to live in the environment you control for yourself. But, you just let the road drop away, and the faces go, and the wind blow, and the flood come, you (will) discover your character. Character is not how you appear to your fellows; character is what you are when everything in which you've had confidence in is gone. Someone says, 'Character is what you are in a dark room alone when no one is watching'. Character is what you are in the midst of the Tornado; is what you are in the midst of difficulty when everything is disrupted and torn - Then, what are you?" - Paris Reidhead (I wrote this down some years back after listening to one of his audio sermons posted on this website. Every one of us would confess that we believe in prayer, yet how many of us truly believe in the power of prayer....

For everything depends upon prayer.

Why are many Christians so often defeated? Because they pray so little. Why are many church workers so often discouraged and disheartened? Because they pray so little.

Why do most Christian leaders see so few brought out of 'darkness' to light by their ministry? Because they pray so little. Why are our churches simply not on fire for God? Because there is so little prayer....

We may be assured of this: The secret of all failure is our failure in secret prayer.

Re: - posted by Yeshuasboy (), on: 2016/2/24 1:23

"6) Conversion begins, is carried on and is completed in the hearts and thoughts of men.

It begins there, for while men are dead in sins they do not consider or regard what is in their heart and thoughts. But when the grace of God comes in power, and they receive it in truth, they begin to think and consider, 'What shall we do to be saved?' Men are in a great quandary in their thoughts, they begin to be disturbed, and their bowels are turned within them. For this reason, regeneration is called the renewing of the mind, and repentance is a change of mind; the heart becomes a new heart, and when the heart is gained, all the rest follows. If the wicked forsake his thoughts, he will quickly forsake his ways (See Isaiah 55:7). The first turn is in the thoughts. 'I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto Thy testi monies' (Psalm 119:59); the thoughts go before and the feet follow after. The first movement of the Prodigal was in his thoughts; when he came to himself and said within himself, 'I will arise and go my father'. While he was thus thinking - it is said, while he was afar off, just taking the first step - his father saw him and had compassion on him.

Not only is conversion begun in, but it is carried on in the heart and thoughts especially, though not exclusively. When others like the Pharisees, study only to make the outside look fair and beautiful, the godly man is employed about his inside, to keep his heart clean. The prayers of godly men are chiefly taken up about their hearts: 'Create in me a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within me' (Psalm 51:10). And as one excellent writer puts it, In what lies the difference between sincere-hearted Christians and others, but in the keeping of the thoughts, without which all religion is but bodily exercise? Papists may mumble over their prayers, hypocrites may talk, but this is godliness. As conversion begins and is carried on in the thoughts, so it is completed, finished and perfected in them; it ends there." - Ralph Venning (Excerpt from "The Sinfulness of Sin; page 229; Reprint ed 2008; Banner of Truth Trust)

IN the beginning the Church was a fellowship of men and women who centered their lives on the living Christ. They had a personal and vital relationship to the Lord. It transformed them and the world around them. Then the Church moved to Greece, and it became a philosophy. Later it moved to Rome, and it became an institution. Next it moved to Europe and it became a culture. Finally it moved to America, and it became an enterprise. We've got far too many churches and so few fellowships.

But if he had the charge of the hospital, or lived in a city where the pestilence was raging, if he would be studying fermentation, the circulation of the blood, blisters and the like, and such like excellent points, when he should be visiting his patients, and saving men's lives; if he should even turn them away, and let them perish, and tell them he has no time to give them advice, because he must follow his own studies, I would consider that man as a most preposterous student, who preferred the remote means before the end itself of his studies: indeed, I would think him but a civil kind of murderer." - Richard Baxter (Excerpt from his book, 'The Reformed Pastor'; reprint ed 2007; Banner Of Truth Trust; page 213)

"The reason we stop seeking is because we don't understand the process. You seek a while and God empties you. You wanted to get filled with good feelings, and you don't get them. The fight starts. Prayer is a fight, and unless your heart is perfect toward God, and you view the objective, and you see the promise afar off, and you're persuaded of it, and you're going to set your faith unto the Lord your God to have the promise, you're most likely going to quit. That's why He tells us to work out our salvation with fear and trembling. ...Would you like to be rooted and grounded in love? Well, then, you can't be a snob anymore. You can't judge people anymore like you have been doing. You can't show the cold shoulder to anybody. You cannot exercise your own opinions anymore. Oh, these views, these opinions! How quickly we judge somebody else, and we're satisfied to do that and to keep a heart that is divided toward God! But to let Jesus Christ reign is a very different matter. "If thou wouldst be faithful to do the work that God hath appointed thee to do in this world for His Name, then beware thou do not stop and stick when hard work comes before thee. The word and Spirit of God come sometimes like chain-shot to us, as if they would cut down all - as when Abraham was to offer up Isaac. Oh, how willingly would our flesh and blood escape the cross for Christ! With Ephraim, we like to tread out the corn, and to hear those pleasant songs and music that that gospel-sermon make, where only grace is preached, and nothing of our duty as to works of self-denial." - Bunyan

Christianity is a Person in expression, a Person in revelation, a Person in impact. It is Christ Himself in His church, His Body, making Himself and His presence known. If Christianity is the making real of Christ as the Way and so embodying all that Christ is and has done to bring to the Father, then Christianity must take up into itself those things which were true of Christ, making Him the Way. - T. Austin Sparks

"They preached fervently and directly. They cast aside that dull, cold, heavy, lifeless mode of delivery, which had long made sermons a very proverb for dullness. They proclaimed the words of faith with faith, and the story of life with life. They spoke with fiery zeal, like men who were thoroughly persuaded that what they said was true, and that it was of the utmost importance to your eternal interest to hear it. They spoke like men who had got a message from God to you, and must deliver it, and must have your attention while they delivered it. They threw heart and soul and feeling into their sermons, and sent their hearers home convinced, at any rate, that the preacher was sincere and wished them well. They believed that you must speak from the heart if you wish to speak to the heart, and there must be unmistakable faith and conviction within the pulpit if there is to be faith and conviction among the pews."

Perhaps it may be a good rule in the reading of Scripture, not to run from one passage to another, or suppose it a duty to read a certain portion of it every day, but to dwell upon particular passages, till they have in some measure done their office.

Everyone should apply Scripture to himself, as if it was written for him only.

Scripture reading is a feast indeed, when we find in ourselves a disposition to receive it in truth and simplicity." (Page 103)

What did he say he believed to be the secret of his happiness, and of all the blessing which God had given him? He said he believed there were two reasons. The one was that he had been enabled by grace to maintain a good conscience before God day by day; the other was, that he was a lover of God's Word. Ah, yes, a good conscience is complete obedience to God day by day, and fellowship with God every day in His Word, and prayer. That is a life of absolute surrender."

"Now the main thing is to get the eyes of the people open. They need to see hell as the result of their sin, and that produces fear, the fear of God which is the beginning of wisdom. Once get this fear and all will be comparatively easy; but if this fear does not lay hold of a man, his so-called conversion is a sham. True love awakens a man to reality; sham love soaps him down to hell, greases his trail, in fact, to hell. Very many are half asleep or deluded, and make up fancy doctrines of their own, which practically mean that an unholy man can get to heaven without being holy. The millennium exists to demonstrate before the world and the principalities and powers, that indeed this land and this people will be what God promised they will be, and the rebuke will be given to the words, "Has God really said?" ~ Reggie Kelly, The Underground Episode 43 : Discussing Premillennialism with Reggie Kelly

I am aware that this will elicit storms of persecution, but in the name of the Lord it must come. God will be glorified in the escape of his holy children from all human enclosures into the "one" and identical "fold" of Jesus Christ. Oh! let us be honest before God in this matter. - D.S. Warner

Quote:
-----"God cannot, as people sometimes think, send sickness or trouble, or accidents...much less death...for these things are unlike His nature."

"alamb",

It appears to me upon a bit of internet research that Emmet Fox was not a Christian and that the "New Thought" and "Divine Science" movements are also erroneous/heretical movements.

I was lead to check this out on the basis that the above quote is patently unbiblical and one cannot hold to the inspiration of scripture and biblical inerrancy and believe the quote above. While the premise is sound (God is purely Good and Holy) - I could cite many times when the bible (in both the old and new testament) flat out contradicts the conclusion of the above quote.

I believe the problem arises when our point of reference is amiss. God is good, man - in and of himself, is not. Therefore it is in agreement with God's Holy Nature to punish and judge evil. If man were good and had never done wrong and 'evil' still befell him - this would be harder to reconcile with God's nature.

Now, in a fallen and sin-sick world, suffering and 'evil' does befall the righteous; including Jesus Christ Himself. This is in agreement with self-sacrificial love, which is also God's nature (to His eternal praise and our eternal joy).

But there are many, many instances in the Bible of sickness, suffering and death coming directly from God's hand and also by His word through ministers of His.

A few instances:

- * Capitol punishment under the Law of Moses.
- * The flood of Noah's day.
- * Sodom and Gomorrah and the cities of the plain.
- * The "Fiery Serpents" in the wilderness.

- * The destruction of Jericho and other sinful cities, apparently including the killing of women and children.
- * The death of Pharaoh's army in the Red Sea.
- * The death of the firstborn in Egypt.
- * The Death of Ananias and Sapphira in Acts 5.
- * The 'hand of the Lord' striking a man with blindness through Paul in Acts 13.

I truly hope you will consider my words and test this man and his doctrine by the Lord Jesus and His teaching and practice, as well as that of His apostles.

Grace to you in Jesus' Life Giving Name.

It might be Greg, but I saw a quote from E.M. Bounds on this Forum; where E.M Bounds was reflecting on the preachers of his day, who lack the power of prayer. They, like the money changers and those that sold oxen and sheep in Jesus' time, use the ministry of preaching to profit from their writings, and such. Does anyone remember the full article from which the quote was taken.

"Say kind reader, did you ever hear or read that the holy apostles and prophets were covetous of such high, vain names as are the learned and the preachers of the world. It is true the word Rabbi or Master was applied to the ambitious Scribes and Pharisees, but not to the apostles and prophets. For we do not read of Doctor Isaiah, of Master Ezekiel and of Lords Paul and Peter. No, no. All those who have rightly taught the word of the Lord, were in their time not honored with such high-sounding names." - Menno Simons

A minister must be: "(4) Zealous in reproofing sin. "Rebuke them sharply" Titus 1: 13. A man of God must suck the fire of zeal out of the breasts of Scripture! Zeal in a minister is as proper as fire on the altar. Some are afraid to reprove, like the swordfish which has a sword in his head, but is without a heart. So they carry the sword of the Spirit with themâ€”but have no heart to draw it out in reproof against sin. How many have sown pillows under their people, Ezek. 13: 18, making them sleep so securely, that they never awoke until they were in hell!

â€œSurely, if we are not free to follow all, where they follow Christ and His will, we have only changed one kind of bond age for another. I do not think we ought to propose to be modeled unlike every sect, but simply to be like Christ; let us neither seek nor fear a name. I wish rather to have from every sect what every sect may have from Christ.â€” - Anthony Norris Groves

Spiritual gifts are supernatural empowerments given by the Holy Spirit to the followers of Christ so that they can do the work of building up the body of Christ, that is, the church, and extend the Kingdom of God throughout the world.

“Blessed is that man who has done with chance, who never speaks of luck, but believes that from the least even to the greatest, all things are ordained of the Lord. We dare not leave out the least event! The creeping of an aphid upon a rosebud is as surely arranged by the decree of Providence as the march of a pestilence through a nation. Believe this, for if the least is omitted from the supreme government, so may the next be, and the next, until nothing is left in the Divine hands. There is no place for chance, since God fills all things.” 1891, Sermon 2205 Charles Spurgeon
