In reference to the attributes of God, Tozer said,

“We Christians ought to know these things. It’s shameful that we go through life and don’t know them; that all the reading we do is little snips of something that somebody prints in a little book and sells for daily readings; and we get up in the morning and turn over to your daily reading and get that little snip of poetry, or a sentimental or religious saying from somebody, then you go off and you face a big world that’s playing for keeps; a world that doesn’t love you and doesn’t care, and a devil who hates you; and you can’t live on that little religious bird seed.”
