How To Tune into the SermonIndex.net Simulcast Event (Oct 4-6th) - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2018/10/2 20:27

Saints,

This is a post to explain all the various ways to tune into the SermonIndex.net Simulcast event and how to get involved. I will be posting more detailed information as needed and will post direct links to streams as the event ensues. This simulcast is completely free and you can share it with friends and tune in freely.

The stream will start and stop 3 times each day. This is to overcome the libations of the length of the live feeds and also to naturally break for lunch and dinner at all locations.

Here are the 3 segments in timing:

Morning Stream - (9am - 12) PST

Afternoon Stream (1:40pm - 5pm) PST

Evening Stream (6:45-9pm) PST

OFFICIAL START TIME:

The official event stream starts at 2pm PST (Pacific Standard Time) on Thurs Oct 4th.

Here are links to all the schedules for all timezones in North America:

WAYS TO TUNE IN LIVE:

1) Youtube Live - <https://youtube.com/sermonindex>

This is the main way to access the live simulcast and the RECOMMENDED method. All simulcast locations are encouraged to use this method unless they find another more suitable. You can interact with a live chat box on this stream to connect with other believers who are watching at home. You can press the FULL SCREEN button on the bottom far right of the video box to put the feed fullscreen (this is obviously recommended for simulcast locations).

2) Roku Channel - <https://channelstore.roku.com/details/90448/boxcast>

The Roku channel option is for those who have an internet connection and own the Roku box that is connected to a TV. You must first ADD the Channel: BOXCAST. After doing so click on that channel box and then find the box called: "Westside Christian Fellowship" after clicking on that box you can then see links for the live stream and also archives of the past ones.

3) Periscope.tv - <https://www.periscope.tv/sermonindex> Or <https://twitter.com/sermonindex>

We are going to look into seeing if we can stream also to this platform which will stream live to the Twitter page of SermonIndex. If this is not possible we will delete this option.

4). Westside Christian Fellowship - <https://westsidechristianfellowship.org/live-stream/>

Watch the live stream on the host church website for each session which will be archived here also.

If you have any direct questions about this event feel free to write them here and I will try and answer promptly.

Bless you, Brother Greg, for all you do for the Lord through this ministry. Praying for all who attended as they go back to where God has placed them. Though I was not there except online, I know God has done and will continue to do a great work through what has taken place over the past three days. Blessings!

I only got to see a couple of speakers during this conference. Sandeep Poonen impressed me the most BUT there are a couple of things he said that caused me some concern when I had time to think about them.

---Something about the Promised land and I think Jerusalem. I have to go back and watch that part again.

---The other was about those who he wanted to be a part of his church and those he didn't. He referred to be baptized and not sinning anymore and if you do then know to stop and that some people would not be welcome there or if they didn't want to continue coming they could leave. That struck me a bit weird.

But on the flip side made an emphasis that what people need the most is not a healing from sickness but a forgiveness of sin.....BOOM..... if I ever hear a preacher not put a focus on the forgiveness of sin I would be very tempted to call them a false teacher because this is the message of Jesus.

There was also a man who preached Saturday evening. An older guy who had weird gestures as well as his speech. Sometimes normal and sometimes hoarse in his voice. I wondered what the world is going on with him.

brother,

each of the speakers are not perfect, and some times they say are not applicable to everyone but their own calling or burden as a minister or local church they represent. But most things they said are powerful, important and applicable to us all.

Glad you could hear what the Lord was saying, the question we have to ask ourselves am I changed or did I just try and find what was wrong? Am I broken? Did I confess my need to God and cry out for a deeper work of His Spirit in me? If things like this do not happen then listening to revival messages are not good, we need change.

Leonard Ravenhill shared a story that he was watching a video of an African young boy in a hospital. He was so suffering so much from malnutrition that his esophagus closed and when they poured small amounts of water it just filled in his mouth and came out over his cheeks. He could not swallow the water. Ravenhill then turns to the audience and tells them this is how he feels preaching the words of God to the people.

What a great need for personal revival "we all" have.

I had the privilege of attending the conference in person Thursday and Friday and it was truly a glorious time. Here is what the Lord ministered to me:

-Jesus loves his Bride very much and there was a very real presence of God in our midst because of the unity that we held together. Christ was being proclaimed and not a denomination or system or theological viewpoint.

-The worship time was very precious and it truly made me homesick for heaven. Listened to the Friday morning session over and over again when our dear sister sings "Just as I Am" is just so beautiful and soul stirring. Thank you Lord!

-This created a deeper hunger in me for times like this in prayer of extended seeking of the Lord together.

-This caused me to evaluate what the Lord is doing in my life and how I may be quenching Him by only expecting Him to move in a predictable, visible way in my life. It makes me desire to open to the Lord working in a new way in my life perhaps in a way I didn't expect. There is a difference between unbiblical and unfamiliar. I don't want to reject anything just because it is unfamiliar.

-I am in continual need of continual reviving.

I encourage anyone who has the time to watch these recorded sessions!

In Christ,

Brother Kevin
