Hello. After years of observing the forums, and a short participatory time several years ago, I have prayerfully decided to join and engage the members here in dialogue.

I have been a follower of Jesus for over 20 years and am excited to glean insights from my brethren around the world.

There is a spirit of fellowship here like no other Christian forum I have observed and this is despite the differences that so often come up. People are so swift to confess a wrong spirit or to ask forgiveness for poor word choices or their part in a carnal argument. This is so refreshing.

I look forward to some virtual fellowship and continued learning from some of the great men of God in the past as we all seek the old paths wherein is the good way.

Be blessed,
Jonathan
