Spanish police may have identified the area that the Nazi war criminal known as "doctor death" has been hiding out. Aribert Heim, 91, whose cruel experiments killed hundreds of prisoners during World War II, has long been at the top of Germany's list of most-wanted Nazis.

"We haven't detained anyone with that name," said Joan Lopez, a police spokesman in Girona. "All we know is that he may have been in the area of Palafrugell recently."

The Spanish police said Saturday they had not found Heim during searches after receiving indications he was located in the northeastern province of Girona. There have been several leads indicating that Heim is on the Iberian Peninsula, including the transfer of large sums of money from his family in Germany to locations in Spain, according to Efraim Zuroff, director of the Simon Wiesenthal Center's Israel office.

It is a sad thing to be on the run all your life. But even more sad is there is NO escaping the day of Judgement as Keith Green said: "All roads lead to the judgement seat of Christ."
