Why do you use the article "an" where it is inappropriate to do so? It disrupts the reading flow since the logic keeps que stioning the error. Kindly do something about it.

A few examples (from Ministry News):

"...SermonIndex becoming AN non-profit organisation in Canada."

"...involved in leadership with AN church plant."

"...support using AN credit card or AN cheque."

Don't you think "A" is the appropriate article to use before these words starting with consonants that "AN" since the word s don't start with vowels?

Thanks,
Thomas Dohling,

I just received the December newsletter today. Nice article you wrote. I was happy to see that Mike Balog wrote one too. It was nice reading an update about your ministry too. That's cool that the non-profit organization process is coming a bit closer. I read about you continuing your correspondence courses with Calvary Chapel and that's really neat Greg that you might get to help plant a church. God is continuing to do good, fruitful works through you and I want to cry from happiness. I desire for my life to be fruitful as well. Oh, and I liked the testimonies on your newsletter too. It's always nice to read how people have been blessed by this ministry. And now you have more than one person corre cting you on the improper use of "an". Remember, before a vowel Greg . The "n" in "an" serves as a "cushion" before a vowel. The "Sermon Index Secretary" is willing to help edit.
