Yes, I proposed to Krista Friesen and she said yes!!

I surprised her with a surprise date. Blind folder her and brought her to a gazebo that was all lit up with candles.

We had a great candle lit dinner, with some GRAPE JUICE (not wine) and I proposed. She said yes. We plan on getting married in October of this year.

A picture of our date can be seen:

(That is a bottle of sparkling grape juice in the picture, NOT any sort of wine of coarse)

Also, quick ministry update. We now moved up to Oklahoma. We preached today on the South Eastern Oklahoma State University.

For about 4 hours we had crowds of 20-50 students. We reasoned, persuaded, exhorted, rebuked, pleaded, for students to give up all their sin and turn to Jesus.

Many of the Christians on campus really liked what we were doing, other professing Christians would cuss us out etc.

Overall, I think we answered the students questions about life, God, sin, the bible in general. There were many thorny ground hearers, stoney ground hearers, but also good soil and I believe God will give the increase.

pictures are available at: <http://www.openairoutreach.com/gallery/album15>

QUOTES FROM STUDENTS:

"I really like what y'all are doing. You're really sticking your necks out there to talk about what's right and what's wrong. Glad there's someone out there doing something about it."

-Bubba Pingleton, Science Education major.

"I like what you're doing. It's really stirring the bucket."

- Clifford Cox, Music Education major.

... yea, and if He does, you better get used to those plastic utensils I see in that picture!! lol (I'm speaking from experience)

May the Lord use you both and keep you from compromise.

Hey Jesse,

Congrats! Getting engaged to my fiance seems like it just happened yesterday (well, it is only 3 months ago). 'Tiz a very exciting time. That's a pretty quick time to get married within.

Being that I'm in a similar situation, I'm curious, but how will such flesh itself out? Will your wife come with you cross country for your evangelism tours? Or will you guys have a place to live, and you just evangelize around there? And are you getting enough in donations in order to afford to live?

Thanks for any input.

She is on staff with Teen Mania Ministries. After we get married, she will stay with TM for at least another year. During that time I will take traveling trips, but there are also campuses near by.

After her time at TM is done, we will travel together.

I am trusting completely in God to provide.

Right now I'm only in the club of engaged men. But as soon as I get married I expect to receive my card to the married club.
